Philanthropic Company Helps “Grease” Community Theater’s Wheels

Contributed By Laura Peebles | Acting Up

When Acting Up needed help moving its sets and props into a local school, it called on the Two Men and A Truck moving company.

“They were great. They volunteered to help us” said Brent Peebles, Board member and construction foreman of Acting Up, a young performers group that relies on community volunteerism to survive. “Since our group is homeless, we had to build all our sets in a warehouse and then rent the school for a week.”

Two Men and A Truck has been extending its volunteering wheels by helping non-profit groups and other people in need. From large jobs such as shipping goods down to Katrina victims in Louisiana to small tasks like moving an organ into a retirement community, the company's community attitude has really helped lift people's spirits.

Their organization's core values really sets Two Men and A Truck apart from other moving companies. These values include: giving back to the community, treating everyone the way you want your grandma treated, and having compassion for family, customers, co-workers and community.

Now, Two Men and A Truck is helping Acting Up, which is holding performances of “Grease” this weekend at the Mason High School Theater, 6100 Mason Montgomery Road in Mason. Show times are at 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 6; at 1 p.m. (sign language interpreter provided) and 7 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 7, and at 1 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 8. Tickets are $8 and are available online at www.ActingUp.com. For more information call 513-588-0988.

Following the performances of “Grease,” Acting Up's favorite moving company, Two Men and a Truck, will help take the theater group's sets, scenery, props and costumes back to the warehouse.
